Hunting Island Lighthouse

The historic Hunting Island Lighthouse is the only publicly accessible lighthouse in South Carolina.

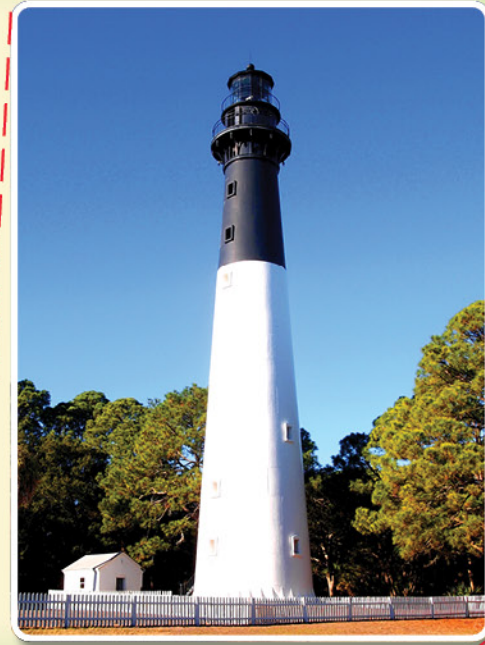

Originally constructed of brick in 1859, the lighthouse was destroyed during the Civil War. It was reconstructed in 1875 using interchangeable cast-iron sections which made it possible to relocate. Due to severe beach erosion in 1889, the lighthouse was dismantled and relocated 1.3 miles inland to its current location.

Visitors may purchase tickets to climb the 167 steps and stand 130 feet above the ground for a breathtaking, panoramic view of the Atlantic Coast and surrounding maritime forest. Children MUST be at least 44" tall to climb. Limited to 6 people per group.

The lighthouse is open year round. Self-guided climbs are available from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., daily, in 30 minute increments. Walk-in reservations may be available on a first-come first-serve basis by checking with the lighthouse staff.

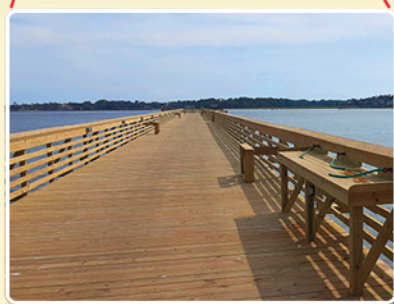

Due to safety concerns, the lighthouse may be closed during inclement weather.

Visitors may also experience climbing the lighthouse by coming to the Visitor Center to utilize the Virtual Reality headsets.
