The caves at Florida Caverns State Park contain dazzling formations of stalactites, stalagmites, soda straws, columns, rimstones, flowstones and draperies. These fragile formations are composed of calcite, a mineral dissolved from limestone rock when surface water containing carbonic acid percolates through the rock into the caves.

Although the caverns are the focal point of the park, the 1,500-acre grounds also boasts a wide variety of plants, animals and other natural resources. American beech, southern magnolia, white oak and dogwood trees are prominent throughout the park, along with a number of plants that are also found in the southern Appalachian Mountains of North Georgia.

Protection

All plant and animal life is protected in state parks. Do not remove, deface, mutilate or molest these natural resources. For your safety, regulations prohibiting the feeding of animals are enforced. Please ask a Park Ranger for specific rules and information.
