This historically significant park is the oldest and largest Woodland Indian site in the southeastern U.S., occupied by American Indians from 200 to 900 C.E. Georgia's oldest great temple mound, standing 56 feet high, dominates two smaller burial mounds and several ceremonial mounds.

Outdoor activities include camping, fishing, picnicking and boating. Hikers can choose from three scenic trails. The Spruce Pine Trail offers views of lakes Yohola and Kolomoki, while the Trillium Trail meanders through hardwoods and pines. The White Oak Trail is connected to the mounds and plaza area.
