

"The Heinen's originally immigrated to the United States from Germany in the mid 1800's. They settled in Bandera and were some of the earliest pioneers. They were well respected and contributed significantly to the development and heritage of Bandera County. The family first started in the mercantile business until 1870 when the Medina River rose and flooded the town and destroyed all their goods in the store. They did not rebuild the mercantile business; they followed the carpenter's trade thereafter.

This family was a hard-working family. Their stories serve as a testament to the resilience and spirit of the family. The pioneer life wasn't an easy life, but times and people were so different back then. Your neighbors were your true friends. Helping your neighbor or community, and not expecting pay, because it was the right thing to do. If someone was in need, they were welcomed to share in what little anyone had. The old mighty dollar played no role in the social relationships. Your class was based off of you, your morals and your character.

The family history and the Heinen legacy I am proud to be a part of it for generations to come. It holds some of the most interesting stories and some of my fondest memories."
